Creative Ways To Keep Your Pets Memory Alive

Consider a jewelry keepsake

There are a number of jewelry options that you can consider, including pendant necklaces that can hold your pet's ashes, or bracelets with your pets picture on it.

Get your pet's paw cast

There are special kits at your local craft store that allow you to create a cast of your pet's paw. This can be done anytime during your pet's life or can be done after they pass prior to cremation.

A custom pet portrait

As you look through memorabilia you have collected over the years, look for a particularly special photo. Ask a friend or local artist to create a custom piece of art.

Choose a final resting place

It can be hard to decide what to do with your pet's remains. Whether you choose to bury them on your property or scatter their ashes. Think about having a customized plaque or going to special places you spent time together – a park, a particular trail, or body of water.

Volunteer or Donate

You can honor your pet's memory by volunteering at a local animal shelter. It could give you the opportunity to be with other animals at a time when you may not be ready to adopt again, just yet. If you don't have the time, consider donating in your pets' memory.
